in Griffith, Ind.

"Gentlemen: Thinking that perhaps a short history of the remarkable recovery of my mother-in-law (Mrs. Anna Gower) might benefit some other sufferers, I give the following testimony: About

September 10, 1908, she was taken sick

to grow worse, requiring a trained nurse.

Night sweats were so bad that it was necessary to change her clothing once or twice every night; her cough increased and she was so weak that she could not stand up without the aid of a cane. In January, when Rev. Wm. Berg, of

St. Michael's Church, at Shreveville, Ind.,

prepared for her death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alternative, and see if it would not give her some relief. I then requested the attending physician to give her this medicine, and he informed me that she had Consumption and was beyond all medical aid. When I asked if he thought that it was useless to try the Alternative, he replied that 'No physician could help her any and I could suit myselt about it.' So I immediately wrote

Rev. Wm. Berg to send for a bottle of Eckman's Alternative. I had no hope for recovery. I insisted that she try the Alternative, which she did. I am glad to say that she soon began to improve. Now, she works as hard as ever, weighs twenty pounds heavier than she ever did before she took it, and is in good health. She frankly says she owes her life and health to Eckman's Alternative."

PASTOR'S WORDS STIR SENATE.

Former Baltimorean Regarded As Slurring Northern Women.

Washington, July 30.—Statements considered to reflect on Northern women contained in an article inserted in the Congressional Record at the instance of Senator Tillman of South Carolina, and made by Rev. Albert Taylor, a former Baltimore pastor, caused a flurry in that body today.

After extracts from the articles had been read and criticised by various Senators, Senator Tillman entered the chamber, explained that he was unaware of the contents of the article and promptly agreed that the whole communication be expunged from the Record.

Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, called the attention of the Senate to statements in the Bledsoe article. He said he deemed them an insult to the women of the North and but for the absence of Senator Tillman would move that they be stricken from the Record. He read the following extracts: "But the strong-minded women of the North, in great and increasing multitudes, desire a different glory from this."

"They covet the power of the hustlings and places in Congress. They would fain enter the lists of pot-house politicians and become the rivals of negroes. Let them on fair daughters of the South, pursue their own course. But if they will unsex their souls, let them at the same time lay aside their modest apparel. Let them cut their hair short and their petticoats, too, and enter a la bloomer the ring of political prize fighters."

"If, indeed, we were the most deadly enemies of the North, we could wish no greater calamity to befall them than the success, the triumph, of such a movement."

"Make their women the equals of their men and rivals of their negroes reduce marriage to a civil contract between coequal partners for the supposed convenience and happiness of the parties and you cause a history of imperial Rome to repeat itself in this country."

JOINT COVENTION.

Norfolk, Va., July 30.—The Postmasters of Virginia and North Carolina will meet at Norfolk in joint convention September 25, 26 and 27. First Assistant Postmaster-General Roper has already signified his intention to attend, and it is also hoped to have Postmaster-General Burleson, who has been especially invited.

It is expected that over 500 Virginia and North Carolina postmasters will attend the joint convention. There will be an interesting program, and the convention will conclude with a banquet. The business session of the joint bodies will be held in Norfolk, with the Monticello Hotel as headquarters.

Death of Maj. C. W. Buttz.

Washington, July 30.—A telegram was received here announcing the death of Maj. C. W. Buttz, at Lisbon, N. D.

Maj. Buttz was born in Pennsylvania, and was a Union soldier during the civil war. Later he settled in Norfolk and began the practice of law. He was prominent in politics and was a delegate to the Baltimore Republican convention in 1864. He was nominated for Congressman-at-large on the ticket on which C. G. Walker was nominated and elected Governor of Virginia, but withdrew ten days before election.

ALEX. J. WEDDERBURN WITHDRAWS.

Mr. Wedderburn's card is as follows:

TO THE PEOPLE OF VIRGINIA.

Since I was eighteen years of age, some forty-five years ago, I have tried to advance the welfare of the people of Virginia and of our country by working through the influence of PURE Democracy to defeat the work of the friends of monopoly, unequal taxation and negro supremacy in the South.

And I intend to continue to work in the people's interest along these lines.

When I announced my candidacy for Lieutenant Governor of Virginia I then believed and still believe that I had as much claim for the position as either of my opponents.

I learned, by experience (bitter or otherwise) that to succeed in a State-wide campaign that there must be INFLUENCE—First, of the press.

Second, of organization.

As to the press, while it generally was polite and courteous to me (for which I thank it), it is either neutral or in favor of one or the other of my opponents.

The organizations in the State are divided between the INS and the OUTS, while an INDEPENDENT has as much chance as a lump of ice in Shool.

I find two political organizations—suppose we call them "rings" for short.

The one is the organization that a majority of Virginia Democrats have selected as their representatives in State and National affairs, and they are fiercely denounced by the secondary ring, whom the party wisely did not see fit to entrust with the management of its affairs.

This secondary organization is composed of men seeking office and who have been seeking first one and then another office all their lives. It is simply a case of the outsider trying to get into the pie counter.

Let us for a moment see what possible advantage could accrue to the State or party by such a change at this time.

Have not the affairs of the State been judiciously managed?

Are the finances not in excellent condition?

Have our Senators not been indefatigable in their efforts to advance every interest of our State and party?

Can any one point to their failure to do their whole duty?

With a State second in agricultural wealth in the South, one developing rapidly in manufactures and commerce, with reasonable taxes (although irregularly levied), with every prospect of rapid progressive development as our roads are improved, our taxes equitably distributed and justly levied, with every evidence of material and educational advance, it appears this is an inopportune time to "swap horses in the middle" of the stream.

Take as an example the controversy with West Virginia. Could Virginia's case be strengthened by electing a new Attorney General, who, of course, is necessarily unfamiliar with the case, in place of the man who has gained seven millions and demands seven millions more. Can the State Agricultural Department be benefited or the farmer's interest be advanced by placing it in control of new men (no matter how worthy), when it is a fact that the present Commissioner has worked successfully, as during his tenure the State's agricultural wealth more than doubled and its productions increased an hundredfold?

Let us admit, for argument's sake, that the large part of intellectual, morality and political accumen centers in the unique organization on the outside.

It must be also admitted as a stubborn fact (not as an argument) that at the last general Democratic primary the old organization was endorsed and continued in power by a majority of over 25,000 of the white Democratic voters of old Virginia.

Having to some extent canvassed the State and having heard from all sections, I am satisfied that a great majority of the Democrats of Virginia are satisfied with existing regime and intend to vote for the re-election of J. Taylor Ellison, being a Democrat and believing in the rule of the people, I feel that to remain in the field would do me no good and might injure our party and aid those who are simply desirous of advancing themselves. Therefore, I have decided to thank my devoted friends for their kindly assistance and assure them that they have my sincerest and most grateful thanks and that the obligation will be increased a hundredfold if they will cast their votes for Governor Ellison on the 5th of August.

And why should they not do so?

Governor Ellison was a gallant Confederate soldier.

He not only served his State in war, but his services to the white race and the welfare of Democracy have been of inestimable value. His record as State Chairman proves he has always led the party to victory.

As National Committeeman his record is unsurpassed.

As Lieutenant Governor none can cast a reflection or a stone at him.

Under these conditions, and they cannot be gainsaid, what reason can be given for not honoring again this old soldier of the lost cause, but the successful soldier for the cause of honest government and white supremacy in our dear old State?

Is there a reason why he should not receive your votes?

NO, NOT ONE.

His competitor, Senator Machen, is young and can wait. Admitting him to be a graceful talker and a reasonably good lawyer does not qualify him for the position he seeks, and it should be remembered that the people who know him best in his native county and adopted city, after honoring him with a term in the State Senate, decided that their interests would be best served by permitting him to confine himself to the practice of law.

As there is no doubt as to the re-election of Lieutenant Governor Ellison, I would suggest to the Senator that he follow the good example I have set him and withdraw in favor of Mr. Ellison, and, as he is a young man, if he adopts this advice he will live to learn that it will be better for his future political aspirations and all concerned.

Respectfully,

ALEX. J. WEDDERBURN.

The Truth About Electric Cooking

For large families where the average domestic help is employed and a large amount of cooking done, Electric Cooking will be found more expensive, and in most cases not advisable.

In small families, where no help is employed, and where nice equipment is desired, Electric cooking will be found many times more convenient, more certain in results and safer in operation—as well as reasonable in cost.

In every family a few utensils for early breakfast emergency and special uses—and for cheering up cold meals with a warm dish or two—is highly advisable from every standpoint, including that of economy.
